

Niels Bohr

Discovery presented in 1913

Discovery called Bohr Model

Niels Bohr put out a set of research papers for his own idea for an atom - the Bohr Model.

This eventually became a primitive model of the Hydrogen model we have now.

Though Bohr's model has been added to and changed, the underlying principles are still valid.

A photo of Niels Bohr

Example of the Bohr Model

